

Membership Cards and Subscriptions

Neil Brindly (members@ulgmc.org) is trying to keep the membership list up to date, please email him if you have a new address, phone number or email address. Neil is also trying to track down the 'few' members who have yet to pay their subs for 2007 - remember that unless you pay you subs you cannot book a hut at the members' rate and you will not be covered by the BMC's insurance scheme.

Forthcoming Meets

Please contact the meets leader if you want to come on one of the meet. If you would like to share a lift to a meet you may want to use the YahooGroup to post the request.

Do you want to lead a meet? Send Keith Mott an email (meets@ulgmc.org) or phone him (07973 747756) and he will be glad to help.

Fallcliffe - Spring climbing in the Peaks? 27-29 April 2007

Contact Keith Mott: 07973 747756 or email: meets@ulgmc.org

Crianlarich - Long days in Scotland 4-12 May 2007

Land's End - Spring weekend camping 25-29 May 2007

As in previous years, Margaret and Geoffrey Batten remind any members who are thinking of joining this meet at Trevedra Farm and who are not regular attendees to contact them so that they can try to increase our booking. Otherwise it might not be possible for everyone to be together in one group. Because of planning restrictions, any member intending to come in a motor caravan is asked to contact Wendy Nicholas at Trevedra Farm (01736 871818 - not after 9 pm) well in advance to discuss the current situation with her. Once again, Wendy has agreed to provide a communal meal on the Sunday night (27 May).

Contact Geoffrey: 0121 475 6604 or email grb@batten.eu.org

Fallcliffe - Early summer 15-17 June 2007

More great grit climbing to be had (or walking or biking) with the possibility of a BBQ in the car park at Fallcliffe.

Pembroke - Camping weekend 29 June - 1 July 2007

Back to last year's new venue! - Tycanol Farm Camping, Newport, Pems. SA42 OST. The owner, Mr Harries, is quite a character, in his eighties and zaps round the campsite on various forms of mechanised transport. Last year we had a free barbecue - excellent facilities for that though the wash areas were a bit primitive. The site is on the coastal path with a wonderful view, 2 minutes from its own beach and 15 minutes walk from Newport. I hope to gee you up this year to do the traverse of the Preselis - you have been warned!

Directions to site: From Newport take the Fishguard road, the A487; the site is 1 mile from Newport. Grid ref: SN 043 395 Cardigan is 12 miles away, Dinas Head, just a couple of miles and further west lie Fishguard and Strumble Head.

Fallcliffe - End of term escape 20-29 July 2007

School's out so this is a perfect time to take the kids to the Peak district for the weekend (or longer).

Swanage - Camping, climbing and walking August 2007

The cream teas are good in Swanage and this coupled with the sea cliff walks and climbing makes this a suitable location for a relaxed and enjoyable weekend. One of the really good things about Swanage is that you can take a walk over the downs and return by train (sometimes a steam train will pull your carriage). The camping will be arranged in walking distance of a pub.

Caseg Fraith - PYB climbing classes 25-27 August 2007

PYB Climbing Classes aimed at 8 years and upwards. This worked really well in August and is a great way to introduce children to climbing.

Contact Keith Mott: 07973 747756
email: meets@ulgmc.org

Falcliffe - A sniff of autumn? 21-23 September 2007

After getting back to the office after the summer holidays this meet offers a well needed break. Hopefully (subject to global warming) the trees and the moors will have started to turn.

Contact Keith Mott: 07973 747756
email: meets@ulgmc.org

Alps - Klettersteig in Switzerland 7-12 September 2007

A change of venue from Italy to Switzerland as we're moving (again). Once we get there we will find a venue but it will be within a short train ride of the airport at Zurich. For those of you who do not like camping we will book a Hutte. Other options if you don't like Klettersteig are walking, climbing or peak bagging will also be available.

Past Meets

Caseg Fraith - Christmas and New Year 22 December 2006 - 2 January 2007

No report!

If you went and want to submit a report the August newsletter please feel free.

Kandersteg Alpine Meet 26 - 29 January 2007

Shaun West reports:

Prior to the meet there had not been any snow at the village level in Kandersteg and Tim had been getting 'slightly' worried. However the snow arrived (at last) the week before giving a reasonable amount of snow in the village and more on the mountains.

The meet was attended by a total of five intrepid alpinists. Tim had brought his 'ski' and he and Caroline were planning to do some skiing on the miles of cross country pistes that there are in Kanderseg. Shaun was more in tune with trying to get some ice climbing done - but Shelagh though otherwise and said that Jakob was too young to belay. So we did some gentle skiing and took a wonderful walk in the sun under blue skies.

Amazingly for Tim and Caroline the snow stayed all week and they managed to keep skiing. A week later the green pastures returned.

Fallcliffe - Hint of Spring? 2 - 4 March 2007

Les Bailey reports:

The weekend started with a less than good weather forecast offering only wind and rain. This may have been the reason why only three people arrived on Friday night for the meet.

The sky was set blue on Saturday and we set off for a walk starting in Chatsworth, passing the Robin Hood before heading up and onto the moors for a classic Peak District walk. The only downside that day was the tedious one mile walk along the Chesterfield road - but you can't have everything.

Sunday was a different kettle of fish. The day started damp and got worse with howling winds and rain, so we took a short walk from Chatsworth and then settled into the Robin Hood for some lunch before heading off home.

The more of the weekend - treat the weather forecast with a pinch of salt.

Caseg Easter 2007 - Climbing Any Age 6 - 9 April 2007

Keith Mott reports:

Easter, uncharacteristically, was quieter this year. Only three qualified as children although sometimes it was hard to tell. One thing is certain, if Neil is there so too is a shed load of food. This year a leg of venison was shared around. See picture.

Although we did not take advantage of the instruction at PYB some hard climbing took place thanks to the Howells and Elliots. Rachael and I did some of our favourite climbs on the London Rocks but the epic of the holiday was suggested by Neil.

On Saturday, just one of the exceptionally hot dry and sunny days we enjoyed, he suggested walking from the hut all the way to Foel-goch and beyond. Not much of a trek along the valley floor but Neil thought it would be fun to do it along the ridge! Fool.

Although the roads were packed with cars the ridge was no busier than usual. We did have to wait, though, to have our pictures taken on the balancing rock!

Rachael showed the makings, once again, of an intrepid explorer although we were all fired at the end and so were grateful for the lift back to the hut. We can now sit back and enjoy the pictures of that spectacular day.

We will try again in August.

Ski-mountaineering in the Silvretta Alps 24-31 March 2006/7

Stephen Olivant reports:

The mountains of the Silvretta area lie in south east Austria between the ski resorts of Ischgl (Austria) and Klosters (Switzerland). A ski-touring map of the Silvretta shows the whole area is a ski-touring paradise. There are plenty of mountain huts linked by a huge choice of routes through an attractive glacial and mountainous landscape. It's a deservedly popular area and we saw lots of other parties during the day and in the huts. The national border follows mountain ridges and cols, so some huts are Swiss and others are Austrian.

Bruce Goodlad IFMGA guided the Ski Club of Great Britain party. We were all very impressed with his skills of finding good routes, climbable summits and powder snow slopes. I had enjoyed a trip in the Gran Paradiso area with Bruce last year and this week in the Silvretta turned out to be just as much fun. By the end of this trip we were planning our next year's ski-touring to the Oetztal area a couple of valleys further east.

We were very lucky to have six days of good weather just after a minor snowfall. Everywhere in the mountains was looking at its whitest, whilst looking down into the snowless valleys it appeared that Spring had arrived. The snow conditions were excellent and the lengthy downhill sections brought smiles to our faces despite some difficulties early in the week of skiing with big heavy rucksacks.

Each day ski-touring in the Silvretta followed a satisfyingly simple pattern. Starting in the chilly shade from the hut with skins on our skis, we followed a valley upwards towards a sunlight col and high level glacier. From there, we climbed a spiky peak (sometimes using axe and crampons) and then skied down further valleys to arrive at our next hut by mid afternoon. Within this basic pattern, each day was quite different because of the natural features (such as snow texture, slope steepness, heat of the sun, views from the summits etc). These daily physical experiences were mind-filling and very strong at the time but, by the end of the trip, it was quite hard to remember the first few days. I suppose our senses and memories were dominated by the more recent days. Pity I decided to save weight by not taking a notebook and biro to keep a diary. I shall have to rely upon photos and the short account on Bruce's website!

Skiing in Beitostolen (where?) February 2007

Hetta Morath reports:

Anybody who likes mountains and outdoor life, and with or without a family, would do well to consider this very pleasant and friendly Norwegian holiday centre some 60 km north of Fagernes. Primarily a holiday resort, it has both a range of hotels, and self catering accommodation. I'm sure it has excellent all round facilities in the summer, but we have just explored its winter potential. Our party was mixed in interests, and included 3 small children, so major hut to hut expeditions had to be left for another time, tho' there are certainly possibilities from here. Downhillers are well catered for with 2 skiing areas. One has a range of fairly easy runs, while the other was considerably more challenging. Both were virtually empty while we were there. From the top of the ski lifts, or from Beitostolen itself, there is a huge network of xc tracks most of which were prepared every day, and all well signed, but be warned, there is no flat land in Beitostolen.

You can hire a pulk and be confidently adventurous as some of the tracks lead way out into remote hills, but we found in general that 1/2 day trips worked best as that was about as long as children wanted to stay in a pulk. Because the tracks wind up and down the mountains, skis with metal edges are essential. I think we did a different trip every day for 10 days, although not always starting from our chalet. It helps to have a car, but there are also buses connecting various areas, including taking people up the road towards Bygdin, closed in winter, to start trails which eventually come back to Beitostolen. Interestingly, there is an outdoor centre for blind and disabled people there and it was very cheering to come across groups tackling anything in the xc/downhill line. They even have biathlon for blind people. Would we go back? Certainly, tho' with a twinge of guilt on account of my lack of Norwegian, and the excellent English spoken by most Norwegians. I'd like to see it in the summer too.

The Battens in the Vanoise again March 2007

Geoffrey and Margaret Batten write:

We reported on our visit to the Vanoise last June in Newsletter No 210. That gave us the opportunity to identify snow-shoeing opportunities in the area with a view to returning during the winter. We already had some knowledge of downhill skiing and ski du fond having spent a week at Bessans and Lanslebourg in 2000. This time we travelled by train and had an apartment in the village of Termignon (1300m) between Modane and Lanslebourg. By the time we arrived on 10 March there was virtually no snow at village level but there was much more higher up and we were able to do some good walks on snow-shoes, traversing several sections of the Chemin du Petit Bonheur which runs above the Arc valley between Modane and Bonneval. The local buses were useful for getting us to/from the start/finish of walks. Geoffrey also sampled the downhill skiing above Termignon and found some very enjoyable runs with plenty of snow around 2000m. A free ski bus connects Termignon with Lanslebourg and Lanslevillard so there is plenty of choice. Definitely a good area for the winter as well as for the summer.

Copenhagen 1 April 2007

Tim (plus Caroline, Geoffrey and Margaret) reports:

The founder members of the University of London Gastronomic Mountaineering Club ventured forth to explore the potential of Copenhagen as a suitable site for its activities.

Fired with enthusiasm following recent reports of heavy snowfalls sur le continent, the four took appropriate equipment to cope with all eventualities. To our surprise there was no snow at all. Furthermore, Copenhagen is extremely flat, affording poor prospects for the dedicated mountaineer. And finally, having left our specialist rock gear at home, we found ourselves with the wrong gear (= no gear) - see the "Wrong Gear Ploy" in "The Art of Climbing Down Safely" by Tom Patey.

What to do? Well, we could observe and report on the potential of the city as a climbing destination. There is much scope for the specialist art of Buildering. Sheer, vertical walls such as those on the RadHus suggest that only a sport climbing approach is likely to prove successful. However, it may be necessary to temper one's enthusiasm by recognising that the authorities may well take a rather different view of bolting up a 300' face.

Alternatively, some of the neo-Baroque buildings in the centre of the old town might be ascended without artificial aid: the parliament building and the old royal palace, for example.

A different branch of our sport can also be practised here, that of Bridging (known nowadays as Deep Water Soloing) - over the canals. There are several sites available, with routes both long and short to suit all tastes.

Finally, we came across a climbing wall. Danes are quite tall as a race, but as the picture shows, you still need to have a "jump start" to reach the first holds.

Reverting to a much older technique of our sport, the use of combined tactics is suggested for those who can't jump high enough.

Oh, and we ate some food.

Newsletters - a plea

Shaun West

I have had a number of members' articles from members with some great photos. For the meet reports it's really helpful if the meet leader could send them to me shortly after the meet is over. The article should be around 350 words long and come with a couple of high resolution photos (I like to tweak them).

President's corner

Club consultation

Points below do not constitute the club's final position on either issue. They are presented essentially for consultation, and may be subject to alteration following comments of members and/or legal representations.

1. The BMC has produced a Child Protection Policy.

As a member club, it's probably advisable that we do so too. The following, in quotes, constitutes the essence of what the committee thinks we need to say, both in the N/L and on the website.

"The club does not allow children (under 18) to be individual members of the club. Children under 18 can join the club only through "family membership" (see the 2004 constitution)

It follows that children under 18 are allowed to stay at the huts only when accompanied by a parent, legal guardian or carer, who will at all times assume responsibility for the safety, conduct and behaviour of the child."

There is a further, tricky angle on this, most probably relevant to Caseg. When (if) huts are booked out to school/youth groups for "exclusive use", would "ordinary" club members still be allowed to use the members' room for sleeping? If yes, are we likely to lose many bookings because of this, if groups are not prepared to accept unknown adults without CRB clearance staying under the same roof? The committee simply doesn't know the answer to the second question; the answer to the first is a matter of policy, which we have not agreed on. Members may wish to comment. (There is a further twist here: if a school/youth group has "exclusive use", would Ray or Ruth Greenall be allowed to visit, in pursuance of their "normal" assistant hut warden duties?)

The back-drop to this is that, at the BMC Huts meeting in the autumn, one of the speakers asserted that he "knew of" BMC-affiliated clubs who had, amongst their members, people who were on the Sex Offenders Register. No further evidence was provided, obviously, but we can't ignore the issue by putting our head in the sand and hoping it will go away.

2. The responsibilities of Meet Leaders

Another club found itself in difficulties when a member attending a club meet had an accident, and began to undertake "proceedings" against the club in general and the meet leader in particular. Potentially, this kind of behaviour leaves both the club, and any meet leader, horribly exposed; it isn't clear whether the current BMC insurance would cover either if things got nasty. The committee therefore decided that the following statement should be issued concerning the responsibilities of meet leaders.

"Leaders of ULGMC club meets have responsibilities concerning only the accommodation at which the meet takes place. Whether the meet is "home" (Caseg or Fallcliffe) or "away" they must ensure that they, or another designated person, has a key to the premises; that they (or another designated person) will be present to unlock the hut; that the premises are not overbooked, i.e. the number of members attending are no more than the maximum number of places booked/reserved; that the requirements of host clubs are met; that the hut is left clean and tidy at the end of a week-end; and that all hut fees are collected and forwarded to the booking secretary of the host club, along with the hut key(s).

ULGMC meet leaders have NO responsibilities for safeguarding club members on mountaineering activities taking place during club meets. Members are regarded as responsible adults, responsible for their own conduct and safety on the hills. Attention is drawn to the statement on the BMC website (www.thebmc.co.uk) regarding the potentially hazardous nature of mountaineering activities, and members are urged to behave accordingly."

We need a Secretary!

If we hadn't realised it already, it has become glaringly obvious to the committee how much the smooth administration of the club has depended in recent years on Sue Esten and her (to Tim!) advanced IT skills. We need someone with similar skills to take on this role. Sue has provided the following description of the responsibilities of the post:

- * Liaising with the N/L editor
- * Forwarding N/L items to him/her
- * Ensuring that an up-to-date e-mail circulation list for the N/L goes to the editor (familiarity with Excel)
- * Mailing the "snail-mail" version of the N/L
- * Liaising with the hon. treasurer/membership secretary over the membership database and changes to it
- * Producing annually a member address and e-mail list
- * Gathering material for the AGM
- * Minuting the AGM
- * Attending and taking minutes of the club committee meetings
- * Liaising with U of L college Alumni Associations
- * Keeping the club archive: adding NLS and storing everything

If you are interested, contact Tim Marshall in the first instance.

E111 or European Health Insurance Card

Sue Esten

A word of warning! Read the small print! Do not assume, as Mike and I were blithely doing that with your European Health Insurance Card (EHIC) that you will be reimbursed 100% for medical expenses incurred whilst travelling in the EU. Your EHIC allows you to access reduced-cost, sometimes free, medical treatment that becomes necessary during your visit. Each country has different rules about state medical provision and in some, treatment is free. In many countries you will have to pay part or all of the cost, and then claim a full or partial refund. For example in France one is likely to have to pay 20% of hospital costs. So you may feel you need additional insurance to avoid what could be an expensive bill. More information can be found on the website www.dh.gov.uk.

BMC news

Copy of an email from Dave Turnbull, Chief Executive, BMC:

"I am writing to you as Secretary of your club to ask if you could bring a number of matters to the attention of your club committee and members. These are as follows:

a. Club representation at BMC Area Meetings.

Since the BMC's Memorandum & Articles of Association were amended at the 2006 AGM, several clubs have asked for clarification on the relationship between clubs and the BMC. A specific query has revolved around whether or not clubs can send official club representatives to BMC Area Meetings. I can confirm that this was discussed by the BMC National Council on 10 March and that there was a unanimous view that all BMC members are welcome to attend BMC Area Meetings and that clubs are very welcome to send official representatives if they wish.

Attendances at Area Meetings are on the up (20-25 people at the recent Lakes, North West and South Wales meetings and 30-40 people in North Wales and the Peak) and I would encourage your club to send a representative to your relevant BMC Area. A schedule of forthcoming meetings is attached below.

b. Workshop for Club Officials, 12 - 4.30pm, Friday 8 June, BMC Office.

As part of the BMC's commitment to improve our administrative support for clubs we are holding a workshop for club officials in early June (see attachment below for outline programme for the day). This will provide an opportunity to clarify any aspects of the BMC's membership renewal process, the civil liability insurance scheme, multiple affiliation refunds, child protection issues etc etc. BMC Membership Services and IT staff will be on hand to help with any queries. This will be an annual event from now on and additional workshops will also be held during the year if there is sufficient demand.

If you would like to send a representative - please could you confirm this by emailing kate@thebmc.co.uk.

c. Summit 45, March 2007 edition.

Finally I would just like to apologise to anyone who received multiple copies of Summit magazine in the recent mailing. The has been due to a de-duplication problem in the new integra database and we are confident that it will be a 'one-off'.

This email has been circulated to all 352 BMC affiliated clubs. If you have any queries on the above - please feel free to drop me a line or to call me on my direct line - 0161 438 3310.

Many thanks for your help and support.

Yours sincerely

Dave Turnbull"
