Welsh Coastal Path Meet Monday 2nd July - Friday 6th July 2012

We're returning to the camp site of last year's meet to do some more exploring of the Cardiganshire coastal path and the surrounding area. Meet venue is Drefnewydd Farm, North Road, Aberaeron, Ceredigion, West Wales SA46 0JR. Tel: 07971 402201 Web site <http://www.campingonthefarm.com/> The camp site is located just on the outskirts of the Georgian Harbour town of Aberaeron, some 15 miles north-east of Cardigan. From Aberaeron, head in a northerly direction on the A487 trunk road towards Aberystwyth. You will pass a petrol station on the left-hand side. Continue for approximately 200 yards and the turning to Drefnewydd Farm is the next turning on the left-hand side. The site is 5 minutes from Aberaeron centre and is dog friendly. I have booked a nominal 6 pitches and paid a deposit on these. So declare you are part of the ULGMC party booked in under my name when you register at arrival. We had such a great time in the Forest of Dean last year that there was no question about returning again this year. There's climbing, canoeing/kayaking, mountain and trail biking, and just standing to admire the scenery. We may even try a little pony trekking. There are also tourist activities.

We will be staying at Doward Park Campsite from Friday 20th July until the following Friday. Please book pitches direct with Alison.

We are looking forward to continuing our exploration of climbing routes in Ogwen valley, maybe go for some walks around Snowdon or some multi-pitch routes in Llanberis Pass. We are also going to make extensive use of the new slate quarry guide. And last, but not least this meet is an excellent opportunity to further our attempts to climb the ten highest peaks in Snowdonia!!

Please contact the meets secretary (Heather, meets@ulgmc.org.uk) or myself (Stephan.Tietz@gmx.de, 07984583146) if you'd like to attend this meet so that I can book the hut exclusively.

Prospective Skye 2012 meet

We are looking into the possibility of arranging a meet on Skye to explore and climb in the Cuillin. The dates (July/August 2012) and exact venue (Glen Brittle most likely) will depend on how many people are interested in coming.

Any members interested in coming should email Mike Hale at mikejhale+ulgmc@gmail.com with preferred dates.

Prospective Alps 2013

We are also looking into the feasibility of organising a trip to the Alps during the summer of 2013. Initial ideas are the Dolomites or the Ecrins (though I am open to other suggestions).

Again if you are interested please drop me an email at mikejhale+ulgmc@gmail.com.

Meets

Easter meet

(Ed: I got two articles so thought I'd pop both in).

Michael Pollitt reports:

During the club Easter meet we (Sam, Kim, Sarah and Mike) decided to have a night away from the warmth of Caseg. After practising pitching the tent, we started just beyond Beddgelert and had our first day's walk in the Moelwyns. There was some snow lying but far less than there was at Caseg, which had advantages for camping. The delightful camping spot was by Llyn Edno (SH662497) and dinner of spam pasta followed by corned beef pasta (then cake & custard). As one who related these to bad sandwiches, it was surprisingly good particularly if one views it as pate! On the second day we walked back to Caseg and retrieving the car took a satisfyingly long time.

Stephan Tietz & Heather Rumble report:

Still remembering last year's wonderfully sunny Easter we arrived in snowy, moon-lit Ogwen Valley late at night on Friday eve. Three years and this was the first time that I have seen Snowdonia in the snow!

Moon-lit Tryfan (George)

We got up rather late on Friday and by this time Mike P. and his gang were about to set off for their two-day walk from Snowdon back to the hut, including a wild-camping for the night. Little did they know that the coming night would be very rainy indeed. See Mike's report.

The rest of us set off in the direction of Idwal. One half of us (Mark, Mike, George, Martina, Andy, Heather and myself) planned to go past Devil's Kitchen and then back across the Glyders. Charlie & Co made the wise decision to avoid the mountain tops which were deep in the clouds and to have slightly shorter walk around Idwal.

Walk to Idwal (Heather)

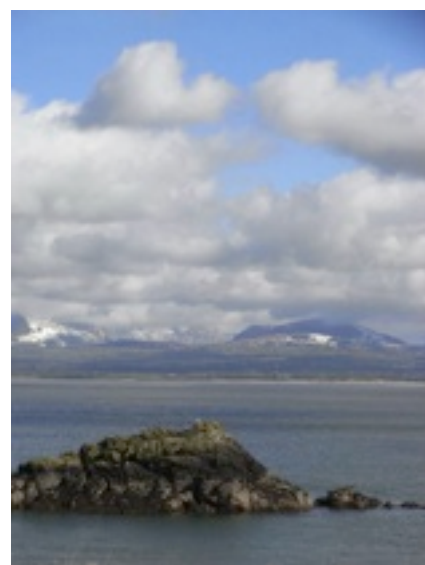

Meanwhile, we took a small excursion to the "Troll Bridge" (below the A5 bridge at Idwal Cottage). Afterwards, we hit up past Idwal slabs and Devil's Kitchen. Carrying on to the Glyders the clouds we saw from the bottom started surrounding us and the next

Snow Slide (Heather)

Once we made it back, Andy having run out of snow piles to head-butt, Frances and family had prepared an excellent meal for us, gratefully received after a hard day on the hill.

The next day, Andy, Ali, Martina and George set off towards Little Tryfan for some multi pitching while the rest of us joined the Motts to escape the drizzly Ogwen valley towards the sunny beaches of Anglesey. After closely escaping a sunburn (well not quite), we stopped for some excellent cake in a little café to whet our appetite for dinner prepared by Heather and Mike. It included purple mash!

Afterwards, Charlie and Anna were excellent in pulling people into painting Easter Eggs the east European style, with wax and dyes. A splendid way to pass the time, just come along next year if you're intrigued!!

Beach 1 (Heather)

On the Monday we hoped to go wild water rafting. Unfortunately, they were fully booked out. So we set off towards, Dinorwig slate quarries. We started off at Dali's hole and popped our head past the (not so anymore) hanging block into California which presented itself to us with a stunning waterfall and snowy scree slopes. As the way ahead was blocked by another group (it involved a climb up a rusty chain) and because even after half an hour we couldn't find the back entrance to Hade, we set off in the direction of Australia.

We went on up more levels after this via stairs and precarious ladders, and past the miner's shed with clothes still hanging from the mining days. Then we arrived at the old transformer house and the cutting shed where we decided, after investigating all the mechanics of the cutting shed thoroughly, to return to the hut before it got dark and cold.

Weaselling (Heather)

I am sure that the August bank holiday will be a little bit sunnier, so give me a shout if you want to come along!

Inter-Uni Climbing Social, 28th April.

Heather Rumble reports:

Stephan, Rob and I attended what I believe was the first inter-University climbing club social on the 28th of April at UCL students union bearing the good name of ULGMC. This was a great opportunity to chat to a wide range of students and find out what they want from a climbing club and, of course, was a good excuse for a knees up! We met students from Kings and UCL who are interested in a wide range of climbing, from London plastic to Swanage sport and from trad in Wales to Scottish mixed, so lots of potential for some great collaborations in future. UCL, the organisers, are hoping to do another one soon so we hope to see lots of you there next time!

Scotland meet

Sue Esten reports:

Several unpremeditated events marked this year's Scottish meet. These ranged from a car's suspension failure caused by the state of the road near Kingshouse in Glencoe (beware!), to breakfast with the laird of the Attadale estate. But incidents aside, the best 'event' was the daily appearance of the sun, with wall to wall sunshine being our luck on many days. Nineteen of us attended for most of the time; however not all were participating fully on the hill – Mike Esten was just 5 weeks post bi-lateral total knee replacements and Willie Butler was/is struggling with a faulty hip replacement that needs re-doing.

4 comfortable cottages belonging to the estate provided our accommodation: these were about 10 minutes walk away from the Attadale Gardens, beautifully cared for and maintained gardens surrounding the laird's manor which are open to the public. As cottage tenants we enjoyed free access at any time to these gardens – a fully appreciated benefit.

So what did we do in the way of hill activities? Note, I am not describing our 'achievements' as mountaineering, although navigational skills on our first day's outing were called into question! First day – and a modest target was deemed appropriate, so 15 of us set off up the glen to make a round trip which would eventually bring us back to the main road near the entrance to the estate. All went well until we left the forest track to strike across to the footpath which would permit the descent to the loch (Carron) side. We ploughed across heather and tussocky grass, at last finding a path that seemed to answer our needs, thanks to the navigation (guesswork?) of some stalwarts of the party. When we eventually got back to the estate it has to be confessed that a few were not too proud to catch a lift back to the cottages!

The next day dawned a little dull and drizzly, although the sunshine returned in the afternoon. Quite a number went off to Skye and inspected the Old Man of Storr; others were happily lazy and inspected the gardens instead! The Hellens retrieved their car from a garage in Ballachulish where a suspension spring had been replaced.

Tuesday saw some 9 members of the party ascend Sgurr na Fearraig from Craig (beyond Achnashellach) on the stalkers' path. The day was absolutely beautiful, but like all others cold when out of the sun.

Wednesday was designated as a special day dedicated to the memory of Dave Lindsey who sadly died suddenly just before last Christmas. Tony Gilby, a member of the Munro Society had booked 2 Munros, Sgurr Rhuadh and Beinn Liath Mhor to be climbed in memory of Dave. It should be explained that the Munro Society have this year, its 10th year, the objective of climbing all the Munros and society members are invited to climb – and book to do – peaks of their choosing. Liz, Dave's widow, very nobly carried a suitable liquid tribute to the pass between the 2 peaks where 14 of the meet's members drank to Dave's memory and all that the mountains had meant to him. Trev and Michael did the traverse of Beinn Liath Mhor before joining us at the pass. Then 6 of us climbed Sgurr Rhuadh whilst the others walked back to Achnashellach, after which Liz and Tony descended in the direction of the pass in order to traverse Beinn Liath Mhor as Tony had to do this peak, being the Munro Society member. By then the day was quite advanced and it was 9.15pm before they returned to the Attadale cottages!

Wednesday evening brought the power failure that resulted next morning in our invitation from the laird to breakfast in the big house. Applecross seemed to be the destination of the day after breakfast – some did some walking from the top of the Bealach na Ba, whilst others enjoyed an excellent lunch at the Applecross pub!

Our week ended with another very pleasant excursion from Achnashellach – up the hill in the direction of the pass we had been to on Wednesday, then a round down a delightful valley past what must be one of the smallest possible bothies and back to A via the Coulin pass and forest tracks.

And the other unanticipated event?

The water supply to the cottages failed on Thursday evening! – but was quickly re-established by the estate

The Battens in the Apennines

by Margaret and Geoffrey Batten:

Last September found us in the northern Apennines between Bologna and Florence on another Intravel hotel-to-hotel walking holiday. We did the shorter three day option followed a week or so later by Joy and John Parsons who did the full six day version.

The peaks in this section of the Apennines rise to just over 2000m with the lower slopes a mix of farming and woodland. Above 1000m there are beech and pine forests while above 1500m there is heathland.

Our starting point was the small town of Poretta Terme which we reached by train after flying into Bologna. The first day was the 10km walk up to the village of Lizzano in Belvedere- day sacs only plus the ample picnic lunches provided as our luggage was moved from hotel to hotel. As we climbed we could look down on Poretta in the valley and up towards the higher slopes. The next day a short transfer put us on our way to Monte Belvedere (1139m) via the so-called 'Freedom Path'. Monte Belvedere was one of the key points in the German defensive line across northern Italy- the Gothic Line-and it was assaulted and captured in February 1945 by US troops and Italian partisans.

The summit still shows signs of the German positions and there is a monument to the American mountain division involved. From here we dropped down to the slightly higher village of Vidiciatico. The third day of walking started with a longer transfer from Vidiciatico up the road which serves the ski area on the slopes of Corno alle Scale (1944m). We were dropped at the Refugio Carvone and climbed up through the trees to gain the ridge at Passo del Vallone. To the right was the very steep northern side of Corno alle Scale with its latticework cross on the top and to the left was our objective: the rounded and bare summit of the appropriately named La Nuda (1828m). From there it was a long descent back into the trees to reach a broad logging track through a beech forest which finally led back towards Vidiciatico. This was a long hot day: 12 km with about 550m of ascent but with over 1100m of descent to return to the village.

Margaret on the summit of La Nuda.

We had one short rain shower on their first day but otherwise the weather was dry, sunny and warm. Flies were troublesome lower down but disappeared nearer the tops. The hotels were welcoming and comfortable with excellent food- an Intravel speciality. Most of the paths were clearly waymarked with CAI numbers. The relevant map is Regione Emilia-Romagna/CAI carta escursionistica 1:25000 06BO 'Parco del Corno alle Scale'. The Intravel website is <http://www.intravel.co.uk>. ## Not snowshoeing in the Auvergne

By Margaret and Geoffrey Batten:

Having been snowshoeing in the Vanoise for the past four years (see our report in the last Newsletter), we decided to have a change of scene in 2011. Some French friends had enjoyed a week of snowshoeing last year in the Auvergne region of the Massif Central and on their recommendation we made a booking at the same hotel for the end of January: the Gite-Hotel Bellevue at Laveissière which is a few kilometres west of Murat and close to the ski resort of Super-Lioran at the foot of Plomb du Cantal, the highest point in the area at 1855 m. We were collected from Murat by one of the hotel minibuses after traveling by train from Birmingham via London, Paris and Clermont-Ferrand.

The Cantal area of the Auvergne is one of woodlands, high pastures and moorland topped by peaks- puys- which are the remnants of ancient volcanoes [ed: and very nice cheese]. The hotel offered two walks each day to cater for different levels of fitness. Each group carried between them the very substantial picnic lunch provided: every day a different homemade soup and meat plus bread, cheese, fruit and chocolate or cake. On several days we were driven to the start/finish of a circular walk and one day we were able to do a through walk by having transport to the start and then being collected at the finish- one advantage of being with an organised group. We were usually back at the hotel by 5 pm to enjoy mulled wine before the substantial evening meal which during the week included several regional specialities. Our guide clearly knew the local terrain very well and was able to tell us much about the geology, wildlife and farming of the area.

Whilst there was quite a lot of snow, there was not enough to make use of snowshoes- so we walked instead. The weather was mainly fine and sunny although very cold. As a result of the low temperatures, there were many spectacular frozen waterfalls and streams and several times we were forced to make detours because of paths being sheets of smooth ice. In all, we walked some 35 miles with about 10,000 ft of ascent.

We had very poor weather during our previous walking in the Auvergne in August 2004 (see our report in Newsletter No. 204) and this time there was not enough snow to use raquettes although this is always a risk at this relatively low altitude. Nevertheless, we enjoyed our week very much. The current owners of the Bellevue will be leaving at the end of March but we understand that the new owners will be continuing to offer the same programme: look at www.montagnebellevue.com if you are interested or contact us for more information.

President's corner:

Good news - after the AGM we now have a full strength Committee with a lot of new ideas and directions – and an average age in the 40s! See box elsewhere in the newsletter.

It was great to have input from Linda, Mike and Stephan at our last meeting in March, as well as the 'usual suspects'. Linda is now working with Heather on meets, with Heather and Stephan focussing on AGMs. We also took up Stephan's offer to look after the website, in liaison with Mark and Shaun. Plans for the site include more information for new members and regular updates. - and check out the interactive meets section if you haven't been there recently.

Happily the Club's future looks assured, with welcome new generations of active members and office-holders. Our concern now is to ensure that the Club doesn't split into 2 sections who have no contact with each other. Especially since one of ULGMC's attractions for recent graduates – yes really – is the mix of generations and the climbing and career experience of older members. So the Committee is looking into meets which will encourage older and newer members to meet and mingle. All ideas gratefully received.

Have a great summer
 Sue

Meets Secretary Report

Hello all,

Summer is on its way but we've already had plenty of outdoor rambles. Coming up soon are the Scottish Meet (contact Willy Butler), Marks "Grit Delights" outing to Fallcliffe, Lands End with the Batters and watch the website for a possible Brecon Beacons meet.

There's been much talk recently of moving over the channel for some slightly more adventurous ULGMC trips. Again, watch this space, plans are being made as we speak!

Aside from that I've been busying myself making us some ULGMC t-shirts and jumpers, you'll be receiving order forms in your in boxes as soon as they've had approval from the rest of the committee.

We're also trying to up-heave the website (well, Stephan and Mark are) to make it more user friendly and to make it an up to date source of info between newsletters, so if you don't use it currently please have a think about checking it out (www.ulgmc.org.uk). The latest addition is a section telling you about the next outdoor meet and there's soon to be a list of contacts if you fancy joining any of us on plastic at an indoor center near you.

On that note, if you're a regular meet leader or want to host a new meet, it is NEVER TOO EARLY to let me know. As soon as a meet is confirmed by a meet leader, it will be on the website, in the next newsletter and will be on Facebook if the meet leader wishes. This is particularly important for early year meets where the AGM can sometimes be too little notice.

One last note, over the next year Linda Coombs, one of the new committee members will be helping me with meets so please do remember that we can both be contacted about meets. You'll also be seeing more of Stephan who'll be helping me run the dinner in a more official capacity this year.

That's all from me, happy climbing!

Heather

Editor

Just a thought... I get some many good photos these days we ought to find a better way to share them. Also I think it might be a good idea to post some of the materials on the website. We could then try to make the newsletter more dynamic. What do you think?

BMC News

In summary we agreed/discussed the following:

➔ That we should proceed with a training programme for club members in 2013 as a result of the success of the 2012 programme.

➔ Discussed at length what we would like to see on the club's pages of the new look WebPages, so if you have any thoughts let us know

➔ We agreed next year's work plan for the committee ( see minutes for the detail)

➔ We asked that National Council reconsider the Incorporation guidance notes for clubs as it is still felt that they are not helpful or objective enough

➔ It would be very useful if you would let me know what else you would like on the web pages for clubs and any issues that you would like the clubs committee to address on your behalf. Over the next few meetings we want to address the following so your views would be appreciated on any of the topics:

➔ Engaging walking clubs in the club committee and providing support to that group

➔ Setting up and running an online forum for student clubs to input and discuss issues specifically affecting them

➔ Modernising and updating the club contacts and other information held by the BMC to support PR activity

➔ Establish ways of assisting clubs with subs collection to reduce costs, maintain membership profile and meet changing technologies

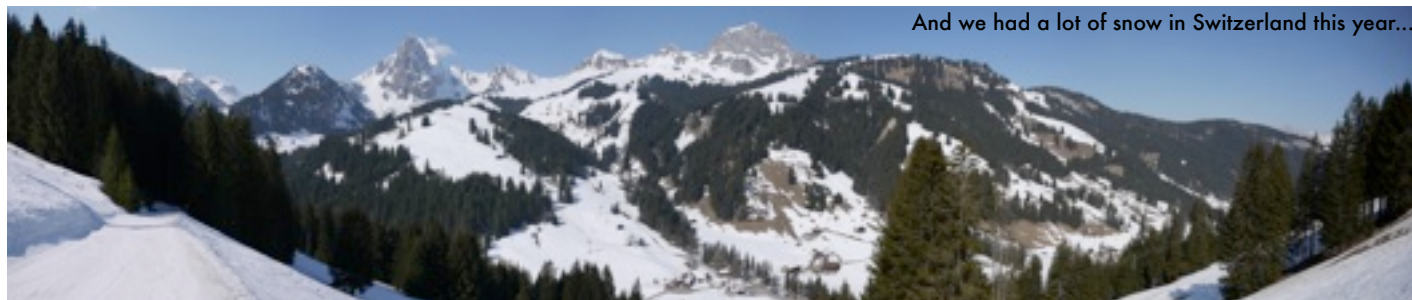

➔ Consider ways the BMC can help individual members access and become club members

➔ Consider ways that clubs could contribute to conservation in its widest sense
